

“ To all the management and staff at Brick and Mortar Restoration, a big thank you for your professionalism and attention to detail whilst tuck pointing our home. From the initial contact with Tammy and Ross through to the actual work being carried out by Max we had no challenges or disruptions. Every day the front of our home was left clean and tidy. Max kept us abreast of all progress and on completion we could not be happier with the final result. We would have no hesitation in recommending your Company to anyone needing tuck pointing done. Thank you again. A happy Christmas and wonderful new year to you all. ”

“ Hi Tammy, Ross provided me with a quote and gave me everything I wanted, including the address of recent jobs where we could see the quality of their Work. We had Perry come to carry out the work and he is nothing short of amazing. He really cared about the work he was doing. He worked with us to get the correct colours for the bricks and the limestone. Everything he did turned to magic, included a part of the job we thought could not be done. We could not be happier with the job, and the Bricks and Mortar have all been sensational. I have no issue with acting as a reference point for this company and recommend their work fully. Well done, you really did knock it out of the park. ” - Mick and Serena

The Tradesman works with his hands - his product is well made and practical. The artist works with his mind, he sees more a concept - a thing of beauty.

Combine these two attributes and you have a craftsman - that rare combination of practical skill and loving care, where pride in one's product is the paramount consideration...

In this age of mass-production, of targets and budgets, turnover assumes importance; price and gimmicks are the influencing factors. Quality is secondary. The affluent mass market wants only to possess. But not so all.

There are those who, in their personal endeavours, set themselves a higher standard. These men take pride in their work and demand of themselves perfection. Their product is their best - they will not produce otherwise. And these men in turn look for the same high standard in others, and their possessions reflect, not just price, but obvious good taste and quality of product.

RESTORING FORMER GLORY Brick and Mortar Restoration was very proud to be asked to be involved with the restoration of The Guildford Hotel.

Anyone who has travelled out to our beautiful Swan Valley region would be familiar with the iconic landmark that is the Guildford Hotel – which was almost completely destroyed by fire in 2008.

Originally built in 1886, the building was added to the State Heritage Register in 1993 – so when it came to the Restoration, it was crucial to ensure the best teams were working on the project.

The Brick and Mortar Restoration Team repaired the damaged brickwork, using every trick in the book to keep the ‘rustic’ feel of the original building whilst ensuring structural integrity.

We even incorporated some of the charred beams the fire left behind into the design as ‘battle scars’. Brick and Mortar Restoration excelled with the installation of four new columns and ornate mouldings.

We have installed over 1500m of Thor helical Stainless Steel Bars and 400 Thor helical Stainless Steel Wall Ties.

Brick and Mortar Restoration rectified Rising Damp to the Guildford Hotel by injecting with Dry Zone.

It is so good to see and be involved with this grand old lady get a second chance at life!
